

Gidgegannup Agricultural Society – March 2018

With the arrival of March, the Agricultural Society will commence preparations for its 72nd Annual Show on Saturday 27th October. This will be done under the direction of the Committee elected at the Annual General Meeting of 25th February.

Administration of the Society today has little in common to that of previous times. Including the Show and other activities such as the production/delivery of this Gidgegram, the Society will outlay about $110,000 this year. This of course cannot be done without making a small profit each year. Income to the Society is mainly achieved through advertisements, show gate entry and rent of ground space at the show. The selfless assistance of Society Members who give of their time and energies either through the whole year or at the busier times, greatly help in keeping our costs down. We applaud and thank each and every one of them.

Sadly many of our more elderly members are finding it increasingly difficult to continue carrying heavy work-loads.

The Society therefore appeal to anyone who is prepared to offer a bit of time during the year to liaise with whoever is responsible for administrating a particular task.

Some areas where the Society could use some new assistants are; Secretary, Treasury, Ground Space, Show Recording, Advertising.

Should you be able to offer some time, please email to info@gidgeagsociety.com.au to make contact or get in touch with anyone on the 2018 Committee List.
